Criminal Investigation Command

BECOME THE DIRECTOR OF CID

The U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Command is seeking a Senior Executive Service (SES) to lead CID and execute its worldwide felony investigative mission. The SES is a small elite group of top government leaders. SES members possess a diverse portfolio of experiences including strong skills to lead across organizations. Senior Executives influence the direction of innovation and transformation of the federal government and lead the next generation of public servants.

CID supports the Army in peacetime and during war. An SES can make a significant contribution to the nation by leading a team of highly-trained professionals while fighting felony crime and making the U.S. Army strong and safe.

RESPONSIBILITIES

The Criminal Investigation Division (CID) Director develops policy on Department of the Army (DA) jurisdiction for the investigation of major criminal offenses. The Director is responsible for the negotiation and finalization of delimitation agreements with other federal, state, and local law enforcement organizations. In addition, the director determines policy for the conduct of all criminal investigative matters between DA and federal, state, local, and foreign law enforcement and security agencies. In addition, determines guidelines and directs the development of investigative policy and operating procedures for all aspects of a global felony-level criminal investigation organization and criminal intelligence collection and analysis. Special programs such as the polygraph examinations, the operation of a certified forensic science laboratory and biometrics operations, major cybercrime and procurement fraud investigation, protective services for designated United States (U.S.) high risk personnel, and surveys to determine the vulnerability of Army activities to criminal activity and/or terrorist threats are also evaluated for scope, and policy determination and program effectiveness. The duty location of this position is Quantico, Virginia.
